

HEALTHCARE & NUTRACEUTICALS SEMINAR

12 November 2018 | 0900 - 1300

Featuring speakers from:

HIROSHIMA UNIVERSITY

Nutraceuticals are playing an increasingly important role for prevention in this ageing society. This is a good opportunity to hear from our speakers about how research is being translated into products that meet the healthcare needs of tomorrow.

0830	Registration
0900	Welcome Address By Prof. Naotaka Hirami, Global Innovation Division, Center of Collaborative Research, Hiroshima University
0910	Application of probiotics strain lactobacillus rhamunosus L8020 to oral health By Prof. Hiroki Nikawa, Department of Oral Biology & Engineering, Graduate School of Biomedical and Health Sciences, Hiroshima University
1000	Supporting the functional food and nutraceutical industry – “product concept to commercialisation” By Dr Kalpana Bhaskaran, Applied Nutrition & Glycemic Index Research Domain, School of Applied Science, Temasek Polytechnic
1050	Free Networking
1110	Trial of preventive and pre-symptomatic medicine by application of health-promoting plant-derived lactic acid bacteria By Prof. Masafumi Noda, Preventive Medicine Laboratory, Graduate School of Biomedical and Health Sciences, Hiroshima University
1200	Exploring new chemical space of herbal products By Prof. James P. Tam, Synzymes and Natural Products Center, Nanyang Technological University
1250	Closing Remarks
1300 onwards	Free Networking

Venue: Auditorium at Matrix, Level 2
Biopolis @ one-north
30 Biopolis Street
Singapore 138671

Please RSVP by clicking here.