

Political Fallout: Nuclear Weapons Testing and the Making of a Global Environmental Crisis

Dr. Toshihiro Higuchi

Assistant Professor, Edmund A. Walsh
School of Foreign Service,
Georgetown University

Toshihiro Higuchi is a historian of U.S. foreign relations in the 19th and 20th century. His research interests rest with science and politics in managing the trans-border and global environment. His dissertation on the Cold War science and politics of the worldwide fallout hazards of nuclear explosions through 1963 won the 2012 Oxford University Press USA Dissertation Prize in International History and Georgetown University's 2013 Harold N. Glassman Dissertation Award in the Humanities. Before returning to Georgetown where he originally received his Ph.D., he held positions at Stanford University, University of Wisconsin-Madison, and Kyoto University (Japan). Dr. Higuchi is an official historian for the International Commission on Radiological Protection (ICRP) and also a member of a committee for research promotion in specialized areas, Japan Society for the Promotion of Science (JSPS). He recently published Political Fallout: Nuclear Weapons Testing and the Making of a Global Environmental Crisis (Stanford, CA: Stanford University Press, 2020).

10:30AM-12:00 AM
JULY 3, 2020

Date and time : July 3, 2020 10:30-12:00 (Japan Standard Time)

The seminar will take place over Zoom webinar (limit 100 attendees)

MC: Assoc. Prof. Shinsuke Tomotsugu, The Center for Peace

Registration is required. Registered person will be informed of Meeting ID and password.

Please send us your name and contact address by e-mail: heiwa@hiroshima-u.ac.jp

《Contact Address》

The Center for Peace, Hiroshima University

Higashisenda-machi 1-1-89, Naka-ku, Hiroshima 730-0053

Tel: 081-(0)82-542-6975

Fax: 081-(0)82-542-0585

E-mail: heiwa@hiroshima-u.ac.jp