Student Application Guide

Hiroshima University Graduate School of Integrated Sciences for Life, the Program of Life and Environmental Sciences (Master's Programs)

Based on its Diploma Policy and Curriculum Policy, this program expects to admit students as described below.

Students who:

1. Have a broad interest in the life science fields from the molecular level to whole environments and ecosystems, and who wish to acquire basic research abilities for a specific field and to learn the theories and methods of understanding and utilizing these abilities from a comprehensive perspective supported by related expertise and skills;
2. Wish to understand various problems existing in life science and environmental science, and to solve them in cooperation with organizations outside the university and the international community;
3. Wish to play an active role as a generalist who covers areas outside life science and environmental science without being constrained by their own expertise;
4. Have acquired a command of English at the level of completing an undergraduate of university course or higher;
5. Have acquired abilities at the level of completing an undergraduate of university course or higher regarding knowledge, attitude, and skills related to their desired specialized fields; and
6. Have acquired common sense and ethical standards as a working member of society.

In order to admit such individuals, this program selects applicants through a multifaceted and comprehensive evaluation process based on its own Diploma Policy and Curriculum Policy, using interviews, academic tests, and external examinations.
