

The 367th IDEC Seminar

co-organised with

Hiroshima University Research Centre for Diversity and Inclusion

Who can you trust? Different forms of trust in society and their effects

Trust is the "glue" that holds together societies and communities. But not all trust is the same – different forms have different effects. This public lecture will explore trust in society, and consider which forms of trust have contributed to the ongoing "trust crisis" which has affected particularly (but not only) Western

Speaker: Prof Frens Kroeger

Permanent Research Fellow at the Centre for Trust, Peace and Social Relations, Coventry University, and Specially Appointed Associate Professor at Hiroshima University. Frens holds a PhD from the University of Cambridge, UK. He has taught at universities in England, Germany and Switzerland, and his research on trust has been published in leading journals and handbooks in his field.

Date: 25 May, 2017

Time: 18:10-19:40

Venue: IDEC 1st floor, Large Conference Room

Language: English

Open to Public

For further information, contact:

Mari Katayanagi, marikat@hiroshima-u.ac.jp (tel. 082-424-6953)