

The 3rd Achievement Presentation by Hiroshima Univ. Special Postdoctoral Researchers will be held on Monday, August 7, 2017

Hiroshima University offers a Special Postdoctoral Researchers (“SPR”) program to doctorate degree holders, aiming to nurture future leaders in the academia or in the industry.

Throughout the one year period of the program, SPR will be given opportunities to improve their practical skills and research development skills, which will diversify their career paths in and outside the academia.

Meanwhile they are allowed to continue their own research at the host organization (lab) to deliver results, to apply for the Grants-in-Aid for Scientific Research (KAKENHI) or to conduct collaborative research with the industry.

You can learn more about the program and grasp some image of SPR through their presentation on the internship experience as well as their research achievement.

All students (undergraduates/graduates) are welcome.
