Course Categories (Special · Integrated · Japanese · Other)

HUSA Program offers four types of courses: Special Courses, Integrated Courses, Other Courses, and Japanese Language Courses.

Special Courses are offered specifically for HUSA students and are conducted in English.

Integrated Courses are originally offered for Japanese students, and professors will provide additional materials (Japanese or English) for HUSA students who have difficulties in understanding the lecture due to the lack of Japanese language proficiency (Japanese or English).

- 1) Integrated Courses (offered in English): Since these courses are originally offered for Japanese students, the level is introductory. Professors speak English quite slowly.
- 2) Integrated Courses (offered in Japanese): Japanese language proficiency of at least level 4 will be required to understand the lecture. If HUSA students are in the class, a professor will provide subsidiary materials in English.

Japanese Language Courses are divided into five levels according to the language proficiency level. There are varieties of courses from elementary to advanced level.

Other courses refer to courses offered originally for Japanese students, and these courses are not particularly designed for HUSA program. HUSA students who have acquired high level of Japanese language proficiency can take these courses together with regular Japanese students. The other courses listed in this brochure are only a small selection of the many courses taught at Hiroshima University. Please check with the lecturer about course requirements and the possibility of special arrangements in terms of exams and/or papers.
